New Showroom Shows Faith in the Future

Despite all of the talk of economic doom and gloom, one local company is expanding and on 27th January 2009 opened new premises on Springfield Road in Hayes.

SafeTech has invested in new offices with a huge new showroom and trade counter for local electrical contractors and installers of fire safety and security systems.

SafeTech has been trading in the area for the past ten years and Surinder Grewal, owner of the family-run business, is convinced that now is the right time to spread the company's wings.

At the opening ceremony he said: "Today businesses of every shape and size have to comply with tougher fire safety legislation, irrespective of any recession. Our response is to offer sound advice and the best selection of products and systems, and to do that we had to have the space for more stock and more effective displays." He continued: "I have been in the fire and security business for more than 30 years and have extensive experience in both the installation and maintenance of this equipment. The new showroom gives us the space to pass this on to our customers."

Service, says Surinder, is at the heart of the business. So much so that the showroom will be open seven days a week - between 8am and 7pm Monday to Saturday and from 9am to 1pm on Sunday. However, if one of SafeTech's customers needs something "out of hours" in an emergency, Surinder promises to open the doors 24 /7.

Commenting on this welcome exception to what many see as generally declining service levels, Yasmin Butt, Marketing Manager of Hochiki UK, which supplies SafeTech with fire detection and alarm devices, commented: "Fire is a very emotive issue and one that is becoming ever more complex. Surinder has the right attitude, and is providing a combination of know-how, trusted products and unparalleled service just when it is needed most."
